Editor's Note: *****

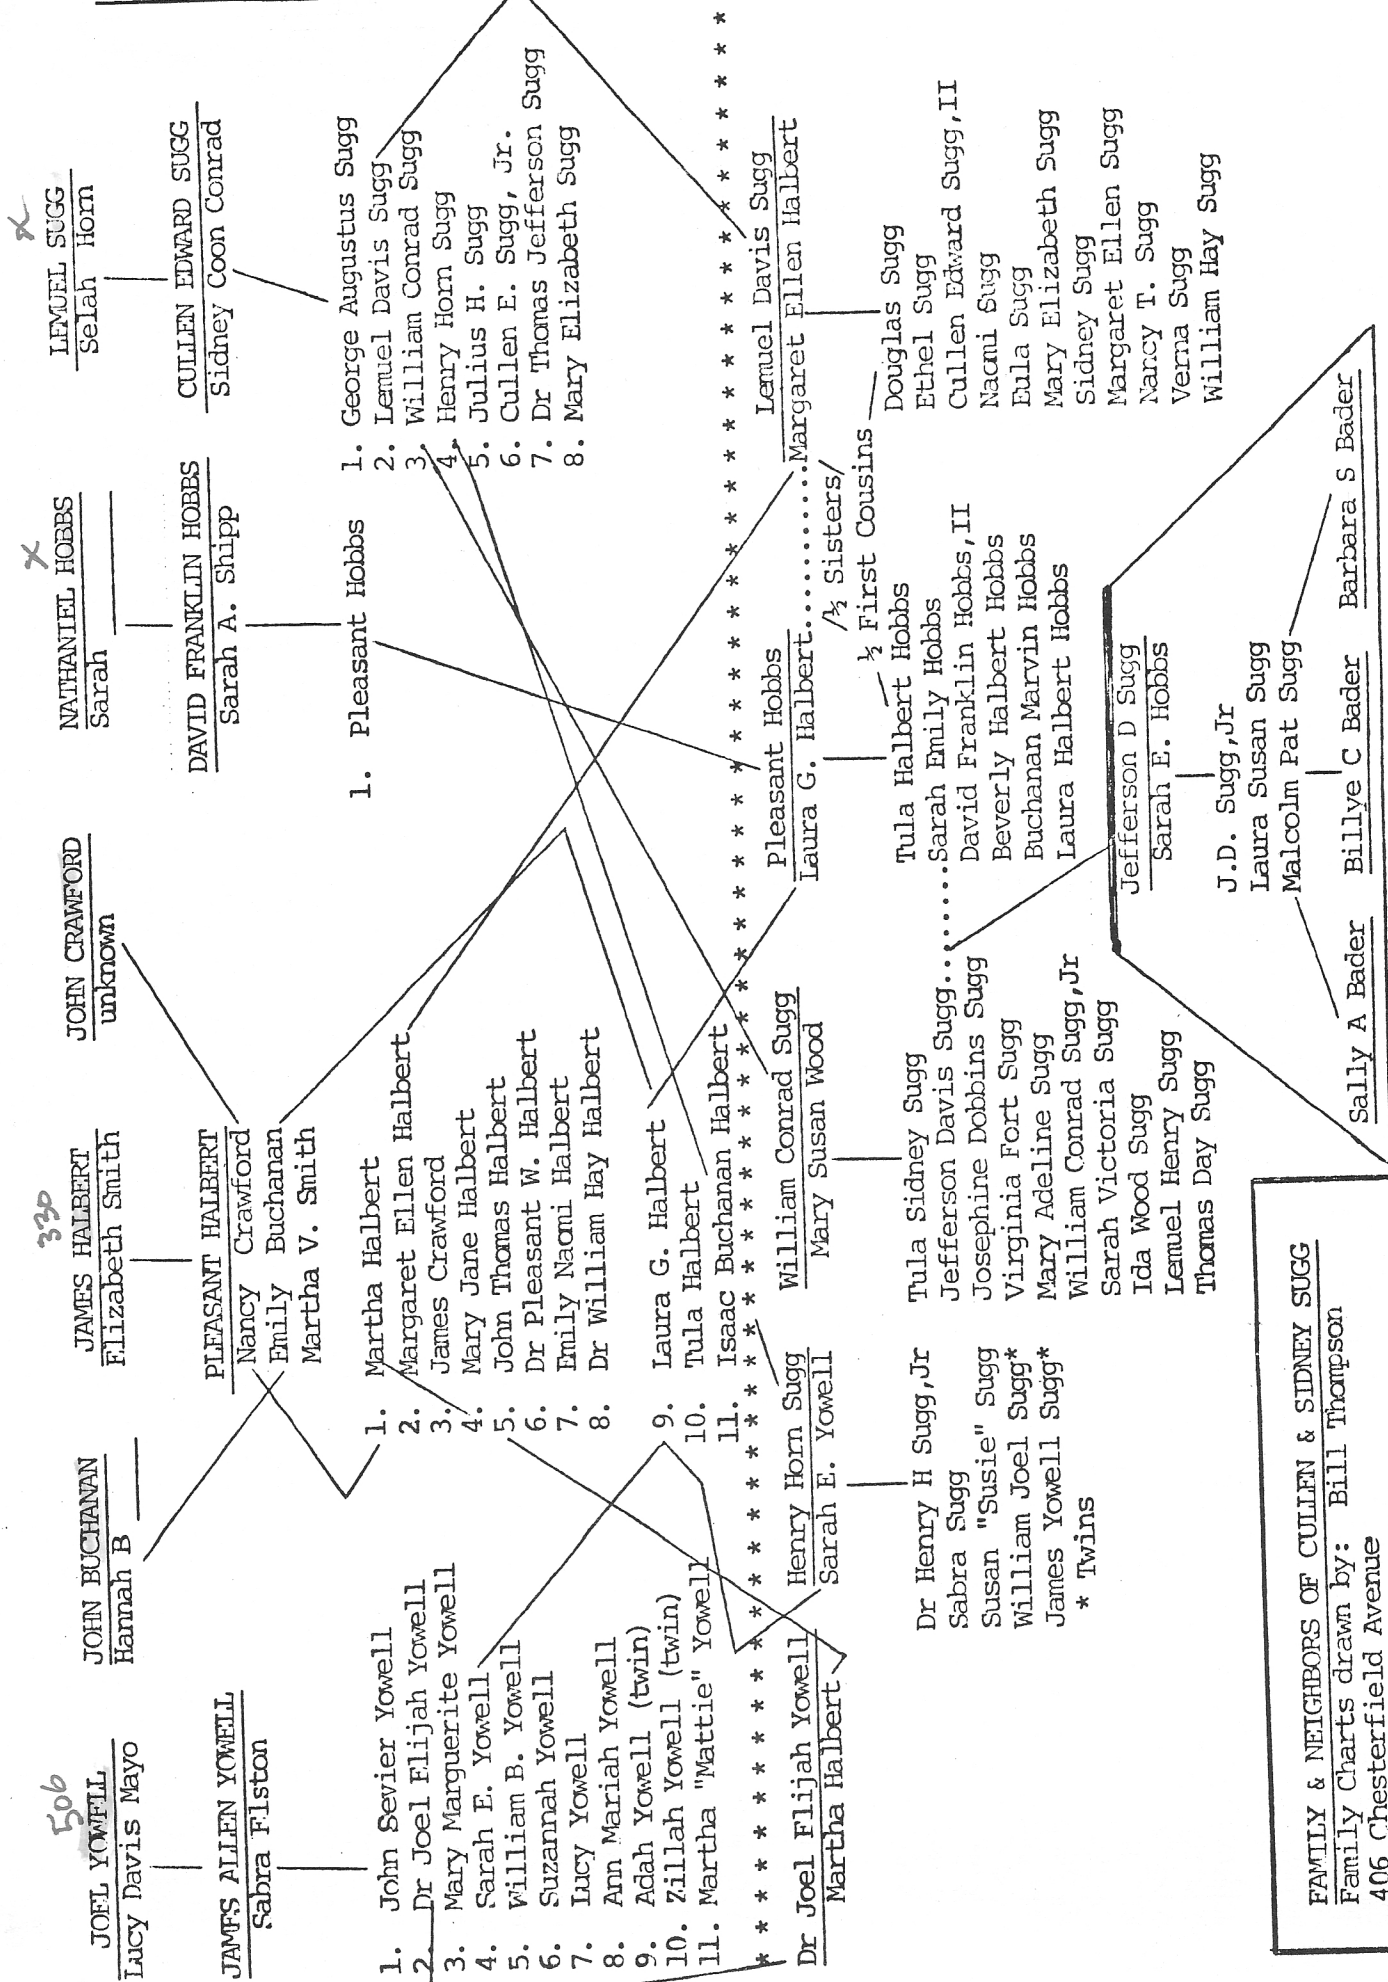

After trying for several years, we have a toe in the genealogical door of LCT. I am writing a column for one of the LCT newspapers-The Elk Valley Times. The column is Spanning the Years. It appears in the Thursday issue of this paper, which is printed twice a week. The column has abstracts from the Fayetteville Observer from 100 years ago-1874 and 50 years ago-
1924. Deaths and marriages from these years are included.
Each column will include about six brief queries.

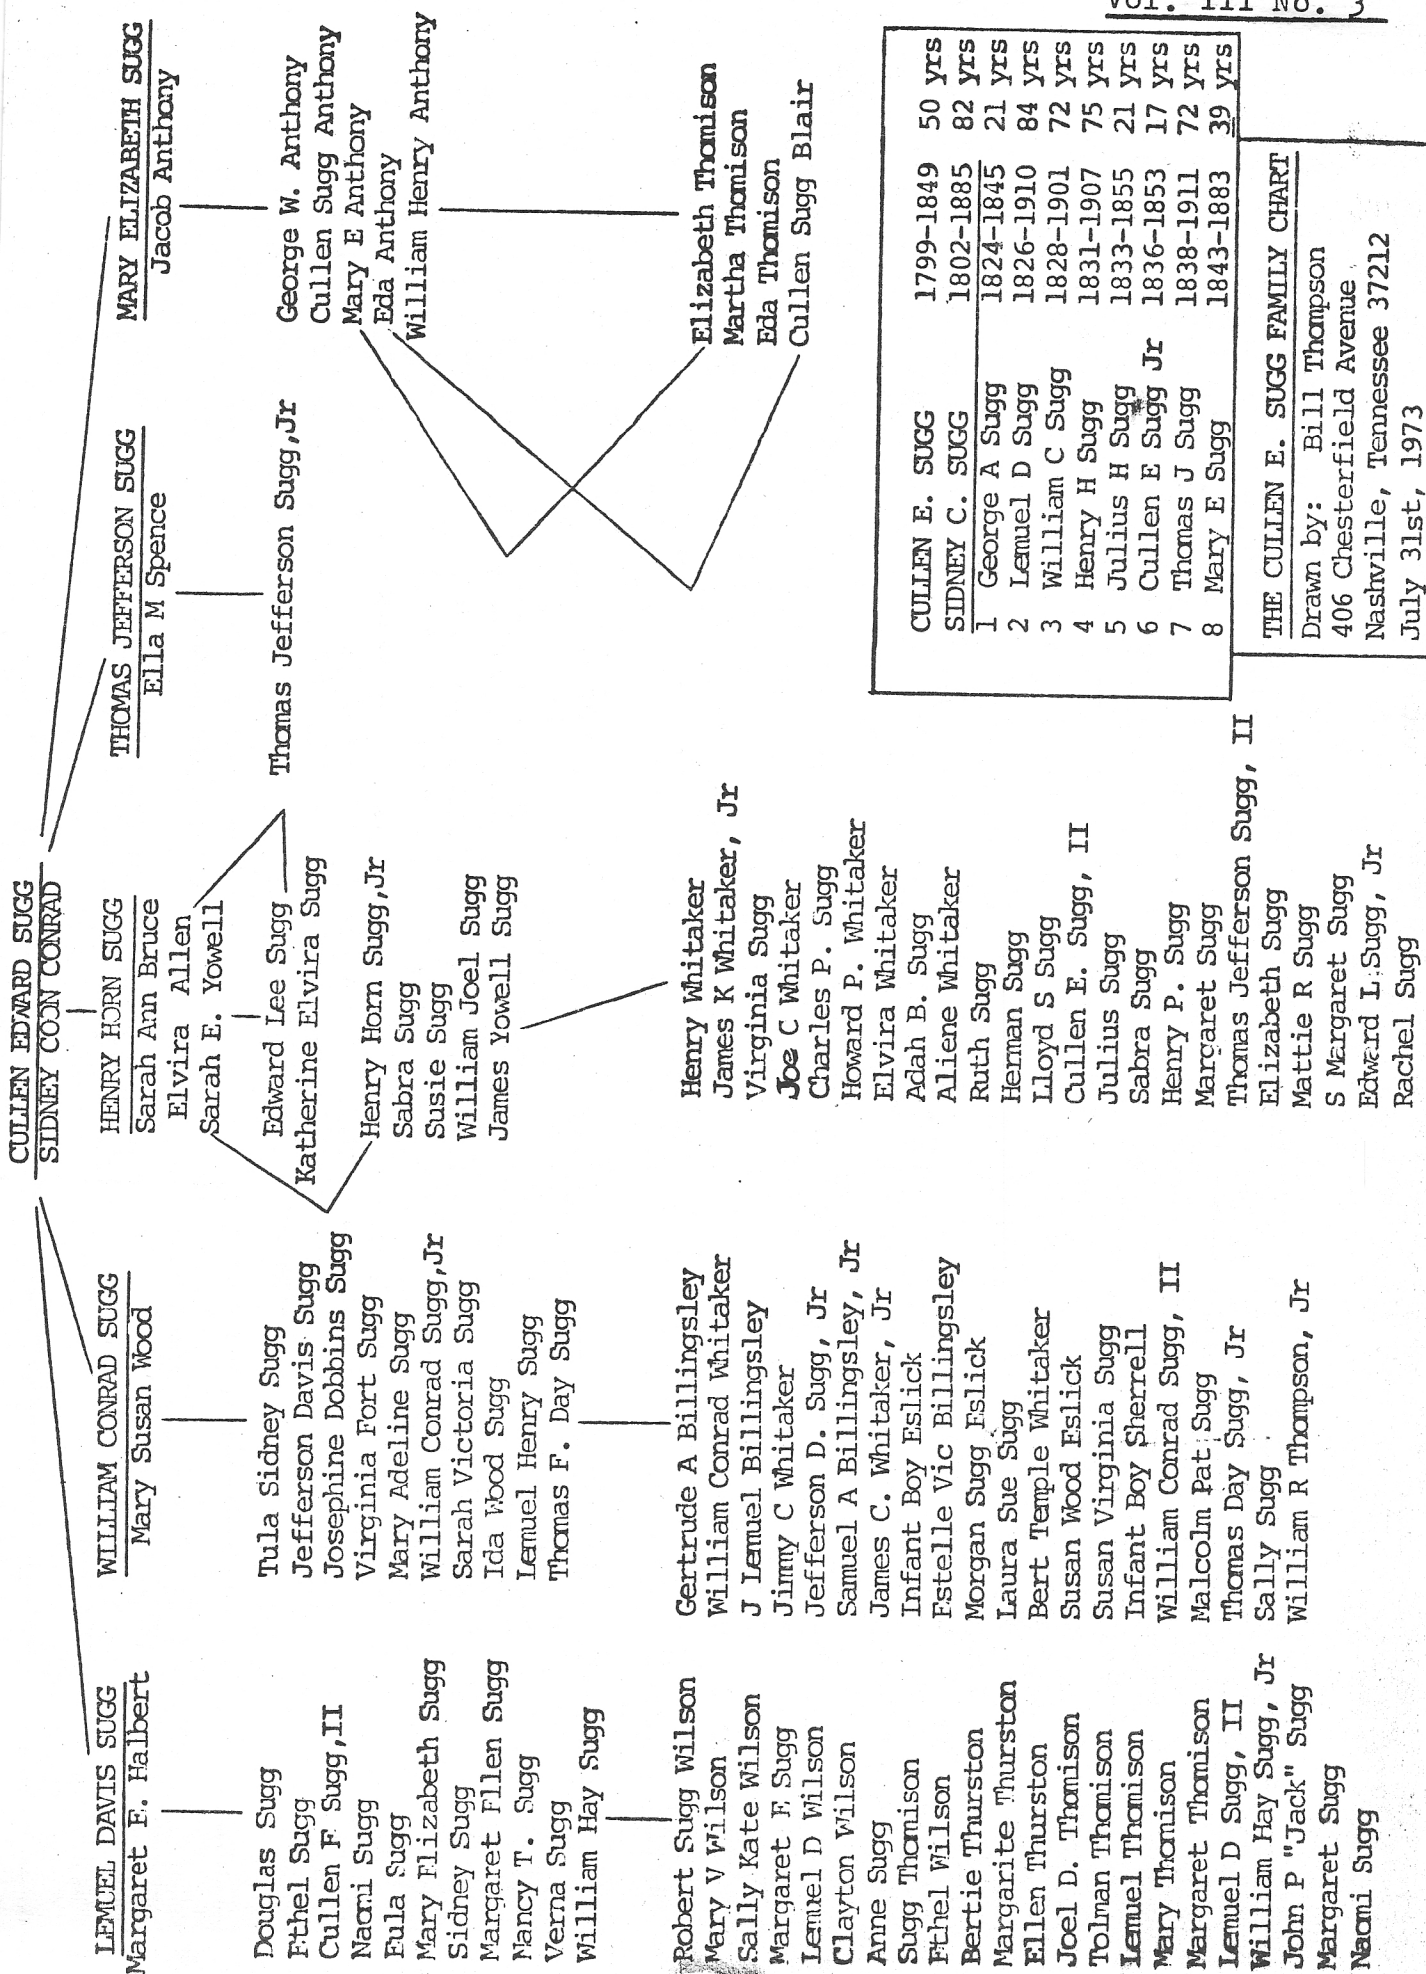

Sample: "Daniel Warren came to Lincoln Co. about 1811-12.
His first wife was Nancy. What was her maiden name?"

Submit queries to me-Jane Warren Waller, 131 Woodhaven Lane,

PIGG FAMILY

Contributed by Hubert Pigg, Murfreesboro, Tn.

History has always been interesting to me, especially that of our American frontier. When I was a young lad I often wondered about my own ancestors. Who were they, and how did they fit into the over-all picture? History of Lincoln County is very sketchy and hard to come by, but after spending several hours in a number of libraries, and with the help of several people, I now know the names of nearly all of my ancestors who lived in this region in the early 1800's.

Lincoln County in 1800 was a vast wilderness. The state of Tennessee hired surveyors to survey this area and the land was sold to settlers for a small price per acre. The surveyors found such a profuse growth of cane along Norris, Mulberry, Cane, and Swan that they sometimes had to wade these creeks for long distances. One surveyor reported being very ill and stopping at an Indian camp where an old Indian gave him some medicine which was so effective that he was able to continue work the next morning. Some of the early settlers and surveyors told of stopping at the cabin of David Crockett and his wife, who were living on Mulberry Creek.

By 1810 settlers were pouring into Lincoln County from North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina in large numbers, being drawn by the fertile land which could be obtained at the cheap price. Quite often settlers, who had built a log house, cut the timber and cane, and planted crops, were forced off the land they had occupied because they had not acquired a legal title to the land, or found that their title was no good. They traveled the many miles across the Cumberland Mountains usually in a small wagon drawn by oxen or horses bearing a load of bedding, utensils and provisions, which likely was all they possessed except perhaps a little hard earned cash with which they intended to obtain some land. A man with a gun on his shoulder might have been seen in front of or beside the wagon, with perhaps some children in front of, within, or behind the vehicle, depending on the weather or the spirits of the party.

That there was much suffering and hardship is, of course, obvious to all. Imagine it is December and the women and children, who often were not adequately clothed, having to huddle around a small campfire, shivering in the cold. Imagine the toil required to build a cabin, clear the land, and provide food in an area infested with rattlesnakes and wild animals. At night could be heard the howl of the wolf and the scream of the panther. According to family tradition, my great-great grandmother Elizabeth Byrd could imitate a panther so perfectly that they would answer her call and come within rifle range. Although they were a hardy people, little medical help was available and a large percent of them died young. The mortality rate among the babies and young children was extremely high.

Two of my ancestors who obtained land grants in Lincoln County at 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ an acre were Epp Sullivan, who settled on west fork Mulberry Creek, and Richard Byrd, who settled on Swan Creek. Also, great-great grand grandfather John Porter was living on Swan Creek in 1808, and great-great grandfather John Pigg was living on either Swan or Craighead Creek probably as early as 1811. 1811 is the date given by cousin John Pigg, dec'd of Columbia, Tn. that my great-great grandfather moved to Lincoln County.

John Pigg and Delilah Citwood were married in Patrick Co., Va., in 1796. He sold some land in Patrick Co. in 1811. The 1820 Federal census for Lincoln Co. lists only one Pigg family: John Pigg, head of household, 2 males past 45, 1 female between 26 and 45, 1 male 10-16, 1 male 16-18, 4 males 18-26, 5 females under 10, 2 females 16-26.

Delilah Pigg in 1826 bought 83 acres of land on headwaters of Swan Creek for $800.00. She bought another tract in 1839. She is listed as head of household in both the 1830 and 1840 census for Lincoln Co. It would seem that John died in middle age during the 1820's and his widow never remarried.

I think it likely that John was a son of the James Pigg, who was named in the Will of his father, Paul Pigg, Sr., recorded in Pittsylvania Co., Va. in 1767. Paul left 200 acres on Banister River to James. In 1777 James sold 186 acres on Banister River to John Short. In 1784 Sarah, James' wife, relinquished her dower right to the 186 acres. This document was signed by two justices from Henry Co., who swore that they had interviewed Sarah and secured her permission. "Virginia Taxpayers 1782-1787" lists a James Pigg as a taxpayer for Henry Co. In 1790 Henry Co. was divided into Henry and Patrick Cos. In 1778 James had taken the Oath of Allegiance in Pittsylvania Co. Older members of the family, who started research before I was born, have given to me the benefit of their findings, and they thought our earliest known ancestor in Virginia was a James Pigg of Patrick Co., who had formerly lived in Pittsylvania Co.

When in Virginia in 1971 doing research, we crossed Pigg River, a small tributary of Roanoke River, which was named for John Pigg, half brother to James. John owned 5400 acres of land on north side of this river.

In 1650 permission was given to a Robert Pigge to come from England to Virginia with Sir Henery Chickerly and Thomas Cox. He came as a Cavalier and was killed during Bacon's Rebellion. He came from Summersetshire, England, and settled in Middlesex Co. Va.

Around the middle of the seventeenth century, John Pigg came to Virginia from England. In "Old Land Grants of Colonial Virginia", we find several land grants to this John Pigg. We find one land grant to him in a history of the Winston family. It is mentioned that John Madison, who was a relative of the Winston's, and John Pigg were granted 1050 acres in King and Queen Co. for the transportation of 21 persons. According to the genealogy in the Winston book, this John Madison was great-great grandfather of Pres. James Madison.

John Pigg and his wife, Jane, lived in King and Queen Co. Parish records of King and Queen Co. give names of their sons: Garrett, Edward, John II, Henery, William, and Paul.

Extensive research on the Chitwood family has been done by a number of people. It is the consensus that Delilah was daughter of Joel Chitwood of Franklin Co., Va., and that his wife was Sarah Cantrell. Joel was son of John and Elizabeth Tillotson Chitwood. John was son of Matthias and Mary Key Chetwood. Matthias came to Virginia from England in 1695 when he was fourteen years of age. He secured a land patent for 400 acres in Goochland Co., Va. July 6, 1741. His will was recorded in Cumberland Co., Va. Jan. 27, 1755. John's will was proved in Franklin Co., Va. in Dec. 1798.
